ACTIVITIES

1. CASE STUDY
2. PROBLEM BASED LEARNING

CASE STUDY 1

In a meeting, majority of its members are having the same view. However, Muthu, who is the leader, does not take the view because he believes that the majority opinion is not the best choice. Therefore, after the meeting, members of the meeting expressed their dissatisfaction and belittled Muthu. Their trust with Muthu is no longer prevailing.

Please give your comments from a different perspective.

CASE STUDY 2

You have been appointed as head of the group for assignments involving team members that you are not familiar with. In the early stage, you find that many of the members are not committed to do the assignment. Among the problems are being absent from meetings and do not want to accept responsibility and role that is inconsistent with their desires.

What will you do to solve the problem?

CASE STUDY 3

Ahmad is an MPP EXCO in an IPTA. He often makes inconsistent decisions. This has caused difficulty to his committee especially involving important and critical matters. One of his committee reported this to you since you are the MPP president.

What should you do?

PROBLEM BASED LEARNING

Present your leadership experience by explaining the items below:

- i. Leadership challenges
- ii. How you faced the challenges (Your leadership style)
- iii. Effects or result due to your actions (as explained in item ii above)
- iv. Then, analyze your leadership style in reference to what you have learnt in the leadership topic as follows:
 1. Definition of leadership: Did your actions fulfill the meaning behind the definition of leadership?
 2. Leadership style: What is the leadership style (please refer module) that is parallel to the leadership style that you presented when leading? Please explain.
